Storm Damage

Huge Branch Crushes Cars

A giant branch of an elm tree was torn off during the height of yesterday's storm, landing with a terrific crash on eight cars in the provincial government employees' parking lot on Government Street.

Damage was estimated at more than $5,000, and one car which received the brunt of the nearly three-foot-thick branch was declared a total wreck.

WEIGHED TONS

A worker on a crane called to remove the branch, which came off a 70-foot tree on the Government Street edge of the lot, estimated its weight at seven or eight tons.

The branch came down about 2:10 p.m. when gusts of wind were reaching a peak of 76 miles an hour.

An eyewitness, Herbert Stocks, 350 Walter, was driving a cab out of the Empress Hotel driveway.

"I saw this thing snapping away from the tree, breaking off and falling on the cars," he said. "It made a tremendous crash. We could hear it from the Empress."

The demolished car belonged to Robert Davison, 834 Royal Oak Avenue, superintendent of the public library commission.

"You don't often hear of an accident like that," he said. "I hope it's my first and last."

Another severely damaged car, that of R. S. Butt, 493 Lamson, was struck across the rear window by the thick end of the branch.

"It could have been a lot worse," Mr. Butt said. "I could have been sitting in it." J. L. Cox, 3309 Whittier, of the motor vehicle branch, was owner of car hit by the higher end of the branch.

Wind Dashes Eight-Ton Branch on Parked Cars

Eight cars were damaged when the 76-mile-an-hour winds brought the branch tumbling down. These cars bore the full brunt of the impact and are near-wrecks.

Branches reached out for 60 feet striking four cars in the second row of the government parking lot. Trunk of the tree and another adjacent elm will be removed today.

Forest Boss Welcome, But... Is One Needed?—Strachan

Salary Ranks With Best

Chief Justice Sloan's new $50,000-a-year salary as British Columbia's forest "czar" puts him into the top income brackets among world public officials.

He and James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, rank as the second highest-paid public officials in Canada. The only official who makes more—$75,000—is Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways.

BEATS DULLES

This is how the chief justice's salary compares with other public men:

It is twice as much as John Foster Dulles is paid by the United States government.

It is $1,400 more than Governor-General Vincent Massey receives.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker receives $37,000.

IKE WAY AHEAD

President Eisenhower's salary is $100,000.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court of Canada gets $27,500.

And B.C.'s Premier Bennett, who gave Chief Justice Sloan his new job, receives only $15,000 plus a seasonal indemnity of $5,000.

The federal government used to pay the judge's $20,000 salary. Now the provincial government pays all the $50,000.

OTTAWA GETS IT

Ottawa will take almost $21,000 of it in income tax.

The chief justice said yesterday that he had accepted his new appointment after being told by Premier Bennett that through accepting he could make a very real contribution to the province and its people.

TURNED DOWN MORE

He could have made more than the $50,000 he will be paid in his new job as forest adviser by accepting offers from private industry and legal offices, he said, but had rejected them because no public service was involved.

He said it was too early to describe how the machinery of his new appointment would be set up. "I haven't had time to get into the matter yet."

Hero's Reward: A Sound Thrashing

Young Pat Collins, left, saw smoke billowing from slum home in Toronto yesterday, dashed into blazing inferno, carried two terrified children, right, to safety—and got beaten up for his pains. Language barrier was the trouble. Pat speaks only English; children, Svetlana and Vera Janpolsky, ages five and nine, scream only in Russian, and waiters from nearby cafe speak only Chinese. Waiters piled into "kidnapper" until he was rescued by an interpreter.

Sensational Secret Report

Second-Rate State? U.S. Gets Warning

WASHINGTON (UP)—The top-secret Gaither report pictures the United States moving to the status of a second-rate power and in its "gravest danger in history," the Washington Post and Times Herald reported yesterday.

In a copyrighted story, the Post said the report "shows an America exposed to an almost immediate threat from the missile-bombing Soviet Union."

The Post said the report was presented to President Eisenhower at an extraordinary session of the national security council Nov. 7, four days after the launching of the second Russian spunk.

The report was compiled by a committee composed of top business, financial, scientific and educational leaders in the U.S.

The report calls for an enormous increase in military spending from now through 1970 and for many other costly, radical measures to prevent "what otherwise appears to be inevitable catastrophe."

The measures called for in the report are listed as "first and second priority."

FIRST PRIORITY

In first priority to overcome the Russian menace, the Post said, it called for a rapidly rising military budget through 1970, reaching in the years 1960 and 1961 a peak outlay of about $8,000,000,000 a year above the current defence outlay—of $38,000,000,000.

Another $5,000,000,000 a year for several years for a civilian shelter program is recommended on a "second priority" basis.

The Post said that the report also recommended a sweeping reorganization of the defence department command system and of the current roles and missions of the armed services. Both are regarded by the report as completely outmoded in this nuclear age, the Post said.

Another recommendation calls for much-increased preparation to fight limited wars.

The Post said the president, "as a result of the Gaither report, has begun to change his thinking."

Appointment of Sloan Both Hailed, Criticized

In "the first indication of new government policy on forestry since receipt of the Sloan Commission report," Premier Bennett announced yesterday the appointment of Chief Justice Gordon Sloan as adviser to the government on forestry matters.

The announcement was welcomed, with some reservations, by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, criticized by B.C. Liberal leader Arthur Laing, and hailed by M. J. Foley, a major figure in B.C.'s pulp and paper industry.

Chief Justice Sloan will resign from his appointment as chief justice of British Columbia and accept the new appointment for 10 years from Jan. 1, with an annual salary of $50,000, the premier announced.

BOLD DEPARTURE

Premier Bennett said the terms of the appointment "indicate a bold departure from previous forestry practices in that it provides a public tribunal to examine, hear representations from interested groups and advise upon granting of timber rights, particularly for forest management licences."

"Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the CCF welcomed a continual examination of the forest industry and its problems "but must protest the devious method which the government has used to provide the machinery for such examination."

MORE POWER

The forest commission proposed by the chief justice in his 1945 forestry report, Mr. Strachan said, "envisioned a forest commission with more power than is proposed in this case. . . . In this case he is only to report to the cabinet."

The opposition leader said it was also important that forest legislation be changed — "Our troubles in recent years have not been caused by the lack of a commissioner but by the frightful legislation which governed the management of our forests."

On the other hand, Mr. Strachan said, as a result of Chief Justice Sloan's being appointed under the Public Enquiries Act, "we can expect that all of his recommendations to the government will be made public, thus we will know whether or not the government is following through on such recommendations."

He also saw merit in picking the chief justice to do the job. "If any man can do this job, Chief Justice Gordon Sloan is that man," Mr. Strachan said.

Mr. Laing said there was no doubt Sloan was a first-class man.

CHIEF JUSTICE SLOAN

Ottawa To Fill High Post

Appointment of a new chief justice of British Columbia will be made by the federal government.

The B.C. government will not even nominate a successor to Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, Attorney-General Robert Bonner made clear yesterday.

He said the appointment was entirely a federal matter.

TWO POSTS

Chief Justice Sloan is both chief justice of the court of appeal and chief justice of British Columbia, and has held the combined positions longer than any of his predecessors.

Now 59, he was the youngest man to have been appointed to the court of appeal in 1937, and was also the youngest and first native son to be appointed chief justice of the province, in 1944.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

GOVERNMENT by "common men" rather than university graduates was urged by Frank B. Hilton, IWA delegate to Victoria Labor Council.

Because "we send the privileged and professional to govern us," governments are callous toward labor, he said.

"We know to elections to university graduates, forgetting always that they are specialists in particular fields while labor has within its rank the experienced men of general knowledge, far more capable of comprising a government acceptable to the public."

"Because a man can take out an appendix or interpret an archaic law does not mean he is capable of governing the people."

How about a man who can fix a sink, Mr. Hilton? How about a man who can install an electrical plug, or operate a saw in a mill? These men are specialists, too. Why are they better fitted for politics

Nonsense in Pure Form

Mr. Hilton's remarks are amusing and worth study. It is not every day that we have a chance to read nonsense in such a pure form.

A university is a place where students have access to all human knowledge—or as large a portion of all knowledge as the budget allows.

University students learn about the structure of the atom, the color of the rose,

the life and works of Plato,

Hittler, Shakespeare, Darwin

and Huey Long; the reasons why the earth spins around the sun and why girls say

"no" when they mean "yes."

Philosophy, psychology,

labor relations, economics, government, literature—all the arts and sciences known to man are studied in universities.

The sum of knowledge is so vast that no brain can ex-

Market-Place for Ideas

A university is not a trade school. It is a centre of disciplined study and free research, a market-place for the exchange of ideas and facts. Through books and lectures, men and women are brought in contact with first-class minds and the knowledge those minds have gathered.

By reading, writing, experimenting and arguing, students learn how to gather and organize facts. They learn to ask questions and to demand proof, and to pick holes in glib, wrongheaded statements.

University isn't the only place where one can learn out an appendix?

Most union members are specialists of one kind or another. Among them are newspaper reporters and columnists, who are members of a union that sends a delegate to the labor council.

Specialists are all right in politics as long as they have experience and general knowledge, and as long as they keep clear of universities.

This appears to be Mr. Hil-ton's view.

Mr. Hilton sees a university as a packing-plant through which men and women are carried on an assembly line to have their brains humanely extracted, the contents of some medical books or law books poured into the hole, and the scar neatly covered over with a homburg.

Then he can land at one place and another and study

the countryside in detail.

But he still keeps in mind that he is living on part of a whole he looks at his maps.

Once in a while he goes on a cross-country flight to strange regions of knowledge.

These mental flights make him humble. They show him

how little he knows, compared with the total of human knowledge; and they give him a hazy idea of the limitless expanse of the unknown beyond.

these things. They can be self-taught anywhere, with much fumbling, pain and waste motion. But a university provides a good environment for learning, and expert guidance.

Some university students learn medicine, law, architecture, and other professional subjects. But students must take general courses before they embark upon their specialties.

Thousands of university

graduates do not enter the so-called "professions." Some of them infiltrate the ranks of "working men." I wonder if

Mr. Hilton plans to unmask these imposters, before they sneak into politics.

A Long Step Forward

THE appointment of Chief Justice Gordon Sloan as special advisor to the British Columbia government on forestry matters, for a 10-year period with wide and flexible powers, is an imaginative step towards the resolution of difficulties which have stalemated major development in the industry too long now. No better choice could have been made by Premier Bennett than the man who in two consecutive reports, now become classics in themselves, suggested what needed to be done to put the province's forest management policy firmly back on its feet. In his new capacity, Mr. Sloan will virtually constitute a one-man standing commission with power to call open hearings on every phase of the matter.

We know of no appointment which could have done more at this time to restore confidence in the government's intentions with respect to the control of forest policy and the declared determination to take a snarled and tangled issue out of politics and keep it out. While the remuneration for the position, $50,000 per annum, sets a new peak in provincial public service it is commensurate with the heavy responsibility which will devolve on the shoulders of the special adviser in the disposition of public assets worth a king's ransom, and a tribute to exceptional abilities for which there is no exact counterpart. From the standpoint of his judicial career and eminence,

Mr. Sloan is making some personal sacrifice to follow a new interest which he has made his own.

It will be noted in the terms in which Premier Bennett has referred to the position that the government will expect far more than advice from its incumbent when the change-over is made at Jan. 1. The forest commissioner will have the investigation and the practical determination of forest management licences directly under review; can call public hearings for the elucidation of competing claims in the same or in any relevant field; and, far beyond the role of advice, is charged with making a forest regenerative system work on the practical terms of today's industrial needs and problems. While the government retains the final authority to act, as it must, it could not lightly set aside advice so given. In this fashion impartiality is being built into the system.

Yesterday's announcement of acceptance of the offered appointment by Chief Justice Sloan was confined to the broad lines of the policy that will now be followed. The details of its working out have yet to come. Mr. Sloan obviously will need a permanent staff, the help of everyone in the existing forestry service, and a headquarters for the standing advisory commission. There can be no question about the big job to be done, or that this is the man equipped to do it well.

Sharing the Christmas

FOR Europeans transplanted in Canada because of terrorism in their home-lands Christmas will be an occasion of mixed feelings. Cut off from their roots, having difficulty finding work and set apart through difference of language, the Yule season may bear hard. Yet in happier times they too enjoyed the warm fireside festivities that mark the lot of Canadians at this time of the year.

There is an opportunity here for Victorians who find it possible to extend a welcome hand. Among the recent immigrants who are still unsettled and finding life hazardous are some of the freedom fighters from Hungary, young men who a year ago commanded the sympathy and admiration of the West as they sought to break the chains of Soviet tyranny. With other European newcomers their Christmas may be a bleak one unless they can be enveloped in the fold of traditional Yuletide goodwill. The community would not wish this to be so.

Official steps are being taken to provide a measure of Christmas cheer for those yet contained in the Immigration building. Others may not be so fortunate; those struggling to fit into the life of what to them is foreign and strange, making do with little and trying to find steady employment. It would be a Christian gesture specially appropriate at this time if they were invited into Victoria homes, many of which doubtless are in a position to extend such a kindness.

This is likely to be the case, for Victoria has a reputation for hospitality to strangers in its midst. Some day these guests may do fine work for Canada, as they become fully assimilated and acquire status as Canadian citizens. Meantime they are far from home and in need of a kindly word and a touch of seasonal goodwill. Christmas will be the richer for those able and willing to share their blessings with these newcomers to the community.

Drawing the Family Together

THERE is a promising augury for the future of inter-municipal relations in the enthusiasm with which the heads of all elected councils have taken up Mayor Scurrah's plan to invigorate the hitherto somewhat moribund inter-municipal committee. In the past the committee has been made up of appointed representatives from the councils. Next year's committee will include for the first time the mayor and the reeves as well. This was Mr. Scurrah's proposal, and it is encouraging to note the hearty approval it received from Reeves Ash, Norris and Wurtele.

The expanded committee will set out to foster harmony among the four municipalities. That is not to say there has been discord in the past, for such differences of view as have arisen from time to time have usually been of minor consequence. It has been a case of four municipalities in what is geographically and economically a single region sometimes going separate ways when, with the help of a co-ordinating body had there been one, they might have pulled together for the common good.

The old committee all but died of inanition because so seldom was it given anything to do. For that reason it rarely met. Next year things will be different: the committee will meet regularly at monthly intervals to discuss in a purely consultative and advisory capacity matters affecting the four municipalities. Already subjects needing study have been listed for the January meeting.

Far more useful than exchanges of formal correspondence, these round-table talks bringing the mayor and the reeves together at one time and place should make for better understanding of mutual problems and points of view.

Interpreting the News:

Indonesian Trouble Fomented

By JOSEPH MACSWEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IT appears that the Indonesian campaign to wrest West New Guinea from the Netherlands is getting warmer.

The Indonesian government itself expressed alarm and anger when it became obvious that Communist-led unions were seizing the campaign as an excuse for harassing actions that went further than the authorities planned.

One way or the other, the program of strikes and economic boycott of Netherlands firms is making life miserable for the Dutch, who long were masters of Indonesia.

The primary aim is to break the Dutch grip on New Guinea, second largest island in the world after Greenland. But also in jeopardy are Dutch investments throughout the 3,000-island Indonesian archipelago.

The situation is all the more dangerous in view of the attempt made in Jakarta recently at assassinating Indonesian President Sukarno.

Although the attempt was unsuccessful, it presented a temptation for inflamed nationalists to hint — and possibly believe — that the Dutch were behind the grenade attack and would go to any lengths to retain their East Indies influence.

The Dutch have travelled a hard road since their grip on the East Indies empire was broken by the Japanese attack of the Second World War. Following that conflict, the island people rebelled against colonial rule and the Dutch East Indies, renamed Indonesia, received independence in 1949.

New Guinea, with an area of 322,000 square miles and a population of 1,500,000, was an exception to the general independence agreement. An inscrutable land of snow-covered mountains, volcanoes, swamps, rain forests and plateaus where tiny kangaroos and spiny ant eaters roam. The people are mostly Negroid, including pygmies.

The western section of the island remained under Dutch control, while the eastern section, including Papua, stayed under the administration of Australia, which had exercised trusteeship over the area first under the League of Nations and later under the United Nations.

Indonesian demands for sovereignty over New Guinea, at home and in the United Nations, do not affect the mandate of Australia, which has been striving to educate the people under its control.

The UN General Assembly has voted against debating the Indonesian claims. The Netherlands being supported in the vote by Britain, Canada and Australia, the United States abstaining.

Thinking Aloud

Middle East Dangers

... of shoes—and ships—and seal ing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IN a radio court drama the other night it was not a good enough alibi that a man might be home of an evening with his wife. According to a sarcastic prosecutor the accused's friends should have known about this; a startling thesis. Many a man spends an evening at home with his wife — half-a-dozen in succession if he can escape the social round—without advising his friends. Anyway the latter have enough to do to mind their own business; they might even be at home themselves with their wives.

The Lord help them all if they must have third-party proof when they elect not to go out of an evening.

When our symphony orchestra plays "O Canada" the audience really stands on guard, with claymores ready and waving; at most other renditions everyone is half asleep at his post. The orchestra should make a record of the anthem and circulate the disc as an example to be followed. The tempo last Monday night was inspiring, and ably abetted by the choral society "O Canada" was something to thrill to.

That's the way it always should be.

When TV began to mesmerize Canadian homes the literate half of the nation stopped reading. So at least bemoaned the lovers of literature. 'Twas not so however, or if it were bookmen are coming back to their senses. The Toronto public library reports book borrowings to be more numerous than ever before. The same can be said of our public libraries. Populations are at their highest peak so there ought to be more books taken out in any case, but in Victoria for one the ratio is also up — a good 15 per cent.

Television has neither dented nor daunted the true reader.

Newcomers or returnees bring vision and enterprise. Hence the range of enterprises introduced by immigrants from Europe in recent years. Hence the Beacon Players, a projected new professional repertory company hopeful of keeping "live" theatre alive in Victoria. If it makes the grade it will take over where the York Players and the Totem Theatre left off. A tough proposition, all things considered, but more power to the promoters.

If the going gets hard perhaps they should invite the Canada Council to display the right kind of interest.

How sterile the soul of officialdom. The British Post Office has ruled as "unseemly" a suggestion that the head of Robert Burns should adorn a special stamp on the 200th anniversary of the poet's birth, in January 1959. Stamp portraits across the Atlantic, it says, are the exclusive preserve of royalty. Dear, dear. And Robin such a staunch supporter, too, of one of the Queen's ancestors; by name of Stewart.

Perhaps Canada can do better than this when the time comes.

It was a king, as noted here recently, who caused the custom of standing to the Hallelujah Chorus, as the Royal Theatre audience did with promptitude this week. He was tired of sitting. Baseball's historic seventh-inning stretch had a related origin, it seems. An inquiry to St. Louis has brought reply that President Taft rose to ease his legs at the change-over of the seventh inning during a Washington Senators game and the crowd, thinking he was leaving, stood up out of respect.

Another story has it that in 1860 a Cincinnati player wrote in a letter that "spectators all arise and walk about between halves of the seventh." But that is not half so romantic an explanation.

By WILLIAM COURTENAY,
OBE, MM
(Part II—Concluded)

ISRAEL'S victory over Egypt burst wide open all pretensions to Arab unity, though Nasser tried to fool the Arab world into believing he had won a victory. The Anglo-French intervention at Port Said Nov. 1 came after Israel's victory was all but complete. But when the United Nations voted that Britain, France and Israel were all aggressors and must clear out of Sinai and that Egypt was the innocent victim, two previous aggressions were ignored, and these had led to this present action.

In 1948 Israel was recognized by the UN as a new state. The Arabs defied the UN and all attacked Israel. She beat them one by one; and they fled the field, leaving Egypt to hold the baby. Egypt was beaten and this led to the fall of Farouk and the rise of Nasser. He was anxious to wipe out the stain of military defeat one day by military victory—the only manner in which it can be avenged or assuaged.

Defying the United Nations, the Arab countries led by Egypt imposed an economic blockade on Israel from 1948. Her ships were not allowed to pass through the Suez Canal. Commando raids from the refugees in the Gaza strip murdered 1,200 Israeli men, women and children in five years in Southern Palestine. Nasser spent millions on military works at Sharm-El-Sheikh, the southern tip of Sinai, and placed six-inch guns there to command the entrance to the Gulf of Akaba and prevent Israel from developing her only port at Eilat. This second act of aggression has likewise not been redressed. Israel went to war to secure redress on these three points.

When General Burns arrived in Sinai with Canadian and other UN forces he held the Gaza Strip, so the raids ended. He took over Sharm-El-Sheikh, so the blockade of Eilat has ended. And by patrolling the Israeli-Egyptian border at Sinai he is now in effect protecting Israel's southern flank from any thrust by Nasser this way towards Israel.

Thus today in planning to rebuild the encirclement of Israel Nasser can approach only via Jordan.

But today Jordan won't play; Nasser has defaulted on the cash. Hussein is yelling out on his powerful radio that Nasser is a double-crosser and has been licked by the Israelis. Nasser is responding by washing of more Arab linen by alleging Hussein is secretly planning to recognize Israel. This invites, of course, the stab in the back of assassination.

Thus if Hussein is assassinated or runs through fear of it, Syrian forces will commence marching into Jordan. So will those of Iraq and Saudi Arabia, who both covet Jordan.

And Israel? She will not stand still and permit hostile forces to enter that "bulge" taken by Abdullah in the 1948 war which divides Jerusalem. Israel will move quickly to occupy the bulge; give herself more elbow room and restore her frontier at the Jordan River. She must be quietly preparing her plans for defence now; hence the tension at the frontier round Mount Scopus outside divided Jerusalem.

Today the Russians have completed a deal with Syria, so the strategic picture has deteriorated since 1956. This is the tragedy. Had America worked with Britain and France at the Suez venture this year's situation could have been avoided.

Too Much Imagination

(From The Ottawa Citizen)

CANADIAN officials have been taunted for years by critics who jeered at bureaucracy for its lack of imagination. The wounds may have cut more deeply than the public knew, and perhaps for this reason the nation's officials have gone to the other extreme when preparing menus and planning entertainment for foreign dignitaries. In recent years, certainly, they have shown imagination to a shocking degree. It is time to call a halt.

The most recent instance is the party at which Canada's United Nations delegation in New York was host to delegates from other countries. The Canadians produced a menu that was "typically Canadian"—an amiable euphemism that cannot possibly fool anyone—in the form of marinated, stewed elk and wild rice. The evening's activities were largely confined to dancing the congo, the rumba and the samba.

This is not the first time an effort has been made to persuade foreigners that elk and wild rice are Canadian foods. They are not Canadian because they are not eaten in Canada—at least, not noticeably. If protocol requires "typically Canadian" foods to be served, the logical choice should fall upon spaghetti and meat balls, or chicken chow mein, or southern fried chicken, or beans. If the aim is to impress the guests, a steak will do.

Nor is the dancing at a party a normal Canadian activity. At the UN party, if Canada's delegation wished to create a truly Canadian atmosphere, it should have had the guests seated elbow to elbow in the form of an ellipse, glumly facing one another and talking in fits and starts. Alternatively, the men could have been in the kitchen reminiscing about the war while the women remained in the living room, exchanging recipes.

The Canadian temperament is difficult enough for foreigners to understand without misleading them by serving them marinated elk and encouraging them to dance sambas. It is high time Canada's officials took another look at where they are heading, or it'll be marinated walrus next.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

The worried-looking customer leaned forward confidentially to the bartender. "Say," he said, "was I in here last night?"

"Were you in here?" replied the bartender, with a grin. "I'll say you were!"

"Did I spend much money?" the man asked. "Like you manufactured the stuff yourself," said the other, admiringly. "You had the time of your life and so did everybody else. Yes sir, you must have blown at least 100 bucks!" "Thank goodness," the customer said, with a relieved sigh. "I thought I'd lost it!"

Some groups denounce dancing as a sin, and maybe it is — though the average man after he has passed thirty looks as if he regarded it more as a punishment.

The dog in the sputnik has been made a Hero of the Soviet Union. We can imagine a song in its honor, celebrating the day when "Mighty Laika Rose."

tralia, New Zealand and the Far East. To secure a foothold in Syria and deprive NATO of its Middle East oil—forcing all to rely on the resources of Canada and the U.S.A. To establish submarine bases from which to drive the Commonwealth navies and U.S. 6th Fleet out of the Mediterranean. She has these now at Vellona (Albania), Alexandria (Egypt), and is to "develop the port" of Latakia, Syria.

Fourthly her strategy is founded on a vast submarine fleet ten times as powerful as Hitler's. She plans to cut all our communications at sea should war come and compel the NATO forces to wither on the vine.

And the start of all this is Nasser's new plot to encircle Israel by removing Hussein. If Hussein goes, therefore, events will move rapidly. England and America should be ready with some plan based on Hussein's invitation to move in—to frustrate the knavish trick and take all the risks associated with a courageous decision.

President Eisenhower has said America will not permit Russia to grab the Middle East, so we must stand somewhere. It must be either before we lose the oilfields or afterwards. Clearly it should be now before Jordan falls.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE part of touring in strange territory that I don't like is passing through cities like Detroit or Los Angeles or New York. Passing through them is bad enough, but trying to find your way to your hotel in one of them is worse. Each great city has its own devices for handling traffic: one-way streets, roundabouts, all manner of local gimmicks. I have been lost for an hour in St. Louis, though my hotel was in full view most of the time. I just couldn't get it.

The solution to this problem was presented to me by one of my most-travelled acquaintances. "All you do," he says, "is drive far enough into a city to become confused. Then stop at a gas station and call a taxi. Tell the taxi driver to drive ahead of you to your hotel and you will follow him. The cost is never more than $2, usually less."

What a wonderfully simple solution! Why doesn't everybody think of things like that? My opinion of the sagacity of my much-travelled acquaintance rose a 100 per cent. I mentioned the matter to my taxi driver here in town yesterday.

"Oh sure," he said. "Lots of people do that. I've been called a dozen times in the past couple of months to drive ahead as guide to strangers motoring through here."

It appears that bright ideas like this have occurred to everybody but you and me.

With the Classics

From "The Cloud"

I bind the Sun's throne with a burning zone.
And the Moon's with a girdle of pearl;

The volcanoes are dim, and the stars reel and swim,
When the whirlwinds my banner unfurl.

Over a torrent sea,

Sunbeam-proof, I hang like a roof—
The mountains its columns be.

Optimism Reigns In NATO Ranks

Reds Say:

Prestige Foiled U.S. Plans

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet press says a sharp drop in United States prestige prevented President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles from forcing their program on NATO partners in Paris.

Eisenhower and Dulles "underestimated the drop in American prestige brought about by loss of its widely advertised military and scientific superiority," says the government newspaper Izvestia.

"This was added still another factor which the western press admits was a diplomatic success for the Soviet Union—Premier Bulganin's messages which made a tremendous impression on public opinion in the NATO countries."

"A great deal of 'skill' was required in NATO to cover up 'peaceful' declarations of strengthening military preparations and creating an atmosphere of military hysteria."

Summit Meeting Winds Up

PARIS (CPI)—NATO's first summit conference ended here Thursday night with a burst of optimistic predictions about the organization's future as a rocket-armed but peace-seeking defender of the Western world.

The results of the four-day meeting of government heads were interpreted by diplomats as a victory for both those who wanted NATO to stress negotiations and those who wanted to concentrate on military defenses.

READY TO TALK

At the same time the 15-nation Atlantic alliance offered in a windup communique to meet the Russians on the foreign minister level to discuss disarmament, an issue now stalled in the United Nations. British sources suggested later that other issues also might be discussed.

President Eisenhower hailed the decisions as bringing "the ideal of peace a little closer" as he boarded the presidential plane Columbine III for the overnight journey to Washington.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, advocate of trying all means of reaching agreement with the Kremlin, said "I am delighted with the results of the conference."

Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker said on his arrival in London that NATO's windup communique "gives the people of the free world renewed hope for continued peace." He added:

"The conference demonstrated the ability of 15 countries with different national viewpoints to work toward a common goal."

The heads of government agreed to build up NATO's arsenal with American intermediate ballistic missiles and nuclear weapons stockpiles. But they expressed readiness to make another attempt to end the East-West arms race.

'Partial Loss of Beauty' Brings Award of $13,260

Nanaimo Woman, 29,
And Parents Injured

A total of $13,260 in damages was awarded by Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne in B.C. Supreme Court here yesterday to Miss Bernice Logan, 29, of 403 Milton Street in Nanaimo.

Miss Logan was severely injured with her father and mother in a car accident on the Island Highway on March 3, 1956.

Her face was scarred in "about two dozen" places in the accident and part of the damages was awarded for "partial loss of her beauty."

Mr. Justice Clyne said Miss Logan's facial appearance had been "vastly improved" by the "competent work" of a Nanaimo doctor and "remarkable face surgery" in New York and New Jersey.

Miss Logan will receive $12,000 in general damages and $1,260 in special damages.

Her father, Joseph Patrick Logan, also of 403 Milton Street in Nanaimo, was awarded general damages including loss of wages of $1,250. His total award was $1,435.

Mrs. Lillian Logan, a passenger in the same car, received $2,000 general damages. Her special damages were included in those awarded to her husband.

Defendants in the action were William E. Weeks, Walter Mackie and William A. Weeks of Ladysmith.

Talks? What Talks? Ask Pulp Negotiators

Despite an announcement by national representative for the Premier Bennett early yesterday, Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union and management representatives knew of no such talks.

"I have no knowledge of any talks," said H. L. Hansen, international representative for the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union.

Mr. Hansen said he thought the premier was trying to arrange a meeting and that the union was prepared to sit down anytime.

However, two of the chief union negotiators have left or will be leaving Vancouver where talks had been held until they broke down Wednesday noon.

John Sherman, international vice-president of the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union, was in Tacoma, Wash., yesterday, and A. E. Brown, international vice-president of the United Papermakers and Paper Mill Workers, was to leave today for Portland, Ore.

Asked if these men were necessary for negotiations, Mr. Hansen said, "I don't know. You draw your own conclusions."

D. R. Blair, manager of Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the six companies involved, said: "As far as any talks here are concerned, as of yet none have been scheduled. I suppose the situation could change quite quickly."

Mr. Bennett disclosed yesterday morning that a meeting was held in his office Wednesday afternoon between chairman M. J. Foley of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau and Mr. Hansen.

part of the branch. The car roof was pushed in, a back window broken, and the trunk dented.

MISSING HUMANS

He pointed out that if the branch had fallen on Government it might have hit traffic passing at the time.

Both Mr. Cox and Mr. Butt carried insurance.

Although names of owners of the other damaged cars were not available, an insurance adjuster said damage would likely be covered by "comprehensive insurance." One other car was hard hit by the butt of the branch, the others received comparatively minor dents in the roof and trunk.

WILL GO

Deputy minister of public works Clive Campbell said that the offending tree would be removed this morning and also another nearby elm.

About six trees surrounded the lot some years ago, Mr. Campbell said.

"It is nice to leave trees standing if you can leave them, but then obviously these were not safe," he said.

Cars parked on the lot did so at their own risk and were not covered by any government insurance, he added.

Sled Dogs Multiply Too Fast

McMURDO SOUND (AP)—Antarctica is threatened with an over-supply of dogs, says U.S. Rear Admiral George Dufek.

The problem arises from a decreasing need for dogs and a prospective increase among the 11 males and 10 females in the McMurdoo kennels. Females can produce two litters a year with seven or eight pups to the litter.

The dogs are staked in the snow on separate leashes that sometimes fail to hold. They mix occasionally despite the efforts of George N. Gagnon, from New Bedford, Mass., the dogs' handler.

Dufek said the dogs will not be destroyed and expressed the hope some way will be found to distribute them somewhere outside Antarctica.

Death on Fifth Avenue

NEW YORK (UP)—Christmas shoppers on Fifth Avenue scattered for cover late yesterday when three policemen shot and killed a fleeing murder suspect.

The fugitive, George Husing, ran along 47th Street from Madison Avenue to 4th Street, police bullets felled him. Police said the streets were jammed with shoppers and rush hour crowds during the shooting which took place only three blocks from Rockefeller centre.

Police said Husing had just bought two pairs of shoes at a store just north of 47th Street when he was approached by patrolman Joseph Smith. Police had warned all midtown stores to be on the lookout for Husing, who was wanted for questioning about a killing. The store manager notified police when he learned the man's name.

Husing ran west on 47th Street, and Smith fired several warning shots. Two other patrolmen, John Miles and Ed Bulger, jumped from their police car and joined in the chase, also firing their guns.

Husing fell at the corner of Fifth Avenue in the heart of one of the city's busiest shopping districts. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

About a dozen shots were fired during the chase. Deputy Chief Police Inspector Edward Feeley said that Husing was wanted in the slaying of John Reiser, 45.

Invisible Staff Stages Annual Palm-Parade

This is the eighth of twelve installments from the book Merry Christmas, Mr. Baxter by the author of Duke Mable, and Palmer of the Bridge.

By EDWARD STREETE

"Did you find out from Mr. Malone how many employees there are in the building?" asked Mrs. Baxter.

Mr. Baxter was reading. "No," he mumbled. "Forgot."

"Won't you please find out, dear?"

"What's to be done?" asked Mr. Baxter, looking up from his book. "So many people work here. We give them so much money. What's to be done?"

Mrs. Baxter sighed. "Darling, we have to get fresh money from the bank. Then we must put it in little red envelopes. Then we have to write each person's name on the envelope. I want to get all these little things out of the way before the last-minute rush."

List All Ready

The next morning Mr. Baxter stopped at the superintendent's office. "Good morning, Mr. Malone. I wonder if you'd do me a small favor. You see, Christmas—"

"Certainly," said Mr. Malone, opening the top drawer of his battered desk. "I have a mimeographed list. Just a minute now. Let me scratch out Molano. He's gone." Mr. Baxter's face brightened. "The new man is Botteroni. I'll write it in."

Mr. Baxter looked at the list in dismay. "Who are all these people?" he asked.

"Building employees," said Mr. Malone.

"But there are so many of them," said Mr. Baxter. "There must be more employees than tenants. Who's Balderson?"

"He's the incinerator man."

"And who are these fellows?"

Across Board

"Well, Zuff is the engineer and Mike Manetello is the relief man on the front elevator. Sokolowski is the night cleaner. And Jones is the handy man."

"Do all the tenants give to this entire list?"

"Oh, yes, sir," said Mr. Malone. "They give right across the board. But, of course, it's up to you."

"Of course," said Mr. Baxter.

"Between you and me I think a good many of our tenants are inclined to overdo it. But then, they get good service and that's what we all want, isn't it?"

Route to Death Accepted Thing

TORONTO (CP)—William Taylor, 21, a student at the University of Toronto, died in hospital yesterday from injuries suffered in a fall from a drainpipe of a university residence.

Police said they believe he was climbing up the pipe to get into South House when he lost his grip and tumbled to the pavement. They said it is customary for students to enter the building by the drainpipe when the doors are locked.

All Minor Characters Suddenly Come to Life

Doors open like magic.

"It certainly is," said Mr. Baxter somewhat overheartily.

One by one the invisible hands were being extended. "The Employees of the Berwick Garage wish you a Merry Christmas." "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from your barber."

On the street corners, the Santa Clauses multiplied. Cold and blue-nosed in their thin, red uniforms, they stood beside their cardboard chimneys, teetering from one foot to the other.

All the minor characters in his world seemed to spring suddenly to life. Dropping the cloak of anonymity which they wore during the rest of the year, they emerged momentarily as individuals. The paper boy and the mailman, those two unseen vassals so unreal to New York apartment-house dwellers, sent vividly colored greetings wishing Mr. and Mrs. Baxter the most joyous of Christmases and the most prosperous of New Years.

The front door of his apartment building flew open at his approach as if controlled by a particularly eager electric eye. He was greeted each evening like the prodigal son by the house staff on duty and the smallest parcel that he might be carrying was torn from him and borne proudly to the elevator like the bear's head at a royal feast.

Mr. Baxter had a number of customers of the type referred to in the trade as "old and valued." Many insisted on sending him gifts each Christmas. It made him uncomfortable and he would protest vigorously to Miss Gillyard, who always nodded understandingly.

"Why don't you send it back unopened?"

"How can I do that and risk hurting Joe Blake's feelings?"

Miss Gillyard nodded again. "Well, then, why don't you keep it?" Miss Gillyard could be most unsatisfactory when she wanted to be.

Mr. Baxter would look at her thoughtfully. "I suppose it's the only thing to do. Joe Blake certainly isn't the kind of fellow that would ever expect special treatment."

"I'm sure of it," said Mr. Baxter. "This is just a glorified Christmas card. It's a bad practice, though."

He referred to these offerings as "commercial." His associates also received a certain number of them, but they tore the wrappers from theirs the moment they arrived with the slightly contemptuous attitude reserved for things that are free. Somehow this distressed Mr. Baxter. Miss Gillyard accumulated his packages in a corner behind her desk, and eventually, he took them home.

Monks at Carnival

The next time he saw them was on Christmas morning, when they would be in the pile under the tree. Their brown-paper wrappings, surrounded by the rainbow hues of the other packages, made them look like monks at a carnival. Mrs. Baxter was rather sarcastic about them.

Transferring the "commercial" from office to home was a problem, however. In congested New York, the only way to transport so many packages was by taxi. But, in the evening, finding an empty taxi called for the most expert city craftsmanship.

Mr. Baxter always hurried straight to the Grand Central Station, stood on the Vanderbilt Avenue curb, near the station's unloading platform, and waited for the cabs to jam up as they discharged passengers. His manoeuvre was designed to leave him squarely in front of the door handle of a cab as it came to a halt in the line. He would open the door and then sink back in the taxi seat, gathering his packages about him.

Establish Rapport

"Kind of bad night," he would say to the driver.

This could apply equally to the traffic or the weather and was a sure way of establishing rapport.

On Christmas morning, when the "commercial" would be piled under the tree with other presents, Mrs. Baxter was always scornful of them. Mr. Baxter, however, noted that eventually she appropriated them and this simple act of pilferage seemed to erase for her their sordid background.

Years later, Mr. Baxter might say, "That's a good cigarette lighter, where did it come from?"

Mrs. Baxter, always vague about such matters, although she could remember the donor of each of her wedding presents, might "think it came from the Frank Denny's."

Mr. Baxter had been under the impression that it came from the Standard Pulp and Paper Company.

Airlines Replace Shipping

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two Vancouver air line companies said Thursday they will provide passenger service to all B.C. coast points served up to now by Union Steamship Ltd., which has announced it will suspend passenger service Jan. 2.

Pacific Western Airlines and B.C. Air Lines said amphibious planes of B.C. Air Lines will provide service to Bella Bella, Namu and Bella Coola, only Union Steamships ports of call not already served by the air lines. Passengers will be flown to Port Hardy in B.C. Air Lines planes to join PWA flights to Vancouver.

Help for Coast

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Hees said yesterday his department is negotiating with west coast shipping companies for provision of passenger service to communities along the British Columbia coast.

This service has been provided by Union Steamships Company of Vancouver but Mr. Hees said continuation of the $562,000 annual federal subsidy to the company would not be justified.

Replying in the Commons to Mr. Hees said alternative George Hahn (S.C. New West means to provide shipping service) and Thomas Barnett (C.C.F. Comox-Alberni), Mr. Hees said the situation has been under study for some time. Union Steamships announced as a result of complaints from Wednesday it will discontinue unsubsidized shipping company passenger service Jan. 2. It is in competition with Union cause of "increasing losses." Steamships, which had requested an increased subsidy, maintained.

Paralysis Can't Stop...

Crippled Beauty Rides the Slopes in Wheelchair

By WILLARD WILKS

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—A perky, blonde coed who only three years ago was America's ski queen, rushed through final schoolwork at UCLA this week in order to spend her Christmas vacation skiing—even though she does it now in a wheelchair.

"They just sort of bolt these special skis on the bottom of my chair, the kids give me a shove and I yell if anyone gets in the way," Jill Kimmont explained with a smile.

Jill is the pretty blue-eyed girl who broke her back and was paralyzed from the neck down three years ago in a skiing accident. She was trying out for the U.S. Olympic ski team at the time. As the American women's slalom champion, she was considered a cinch for the team berth. But she slammed into a spectator and a tree, ending her skiing career—possibly never to walk again.

"I'm going to Mammoth Mountain Ski Resort for Christmas vacation," she said. "My family will stay here, so I'll come back for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Then I'll scoot right back.

"I spend any vacation time I get there—between semesters, holidays and weekends.

"Mostly, I just see everyone I haven't seen for awhile, and Dave has a snowcat and takes me riding all over the mountain. And I ride the ski lift and ski on my wheel chair.

The girl, who will become 22 next Feb. 16, explained that "Dave" is Dave McCoy, owner of the Mammoth Mountain ski lift near Bishop, Calif.

McCoy, 42, married and the father of six, was her ski coach before the tragedy.

Jill is majoring in business administration and working toward a degree in apparel merchandising. She will be a sophomore next semester and plans to take a job managing McCoy's ski clothing shop when she finishes her education.

"I learned to ski at Mammoth and used to live in Bishop," she said. "My father owns the Rocking K Guest Ranch (60 acres) there. We spend part of every year there and the rest of the time live here.

"I'm taking 12 units in school this semester, more than I did before. My brother, Bob, goes to UCLA, too, and he and our friends wheel me from class to class.

a ride when I get stuck . . . Just ask someone for a shove. The school is especially equipped for wheelchairs. They have ramps and elevators.

"Let's put it this way—I'm not a brain. I'm taking my heaviest course this semester as I can now sit up all day without getting tired.

"And my writing is better.

I wear a brace to help hold the pencil. I don't have any movement in my fingers. At first I wrote about five-inch big words, but now my writing is down to normal size.

have finger movement. Just arm motion—which the teachers told us to do in the first grade, anyway," she laughed.

She takes special treatments several times a week and is gaining strength in her arms.

"I still get a lot of mail from people I don't know from all over the world—one or two letters a day," she continued.

"I just heard from my friend, Linda Meyers, who is in Europe to compete in the world ski racing championships at the end of January. She's from Bishop and she's still in the team," Jill said.

"Do you think you'll be getting much news on that? Sometimes you don't see too much on the small, preliminary events. It's really great if you do."

She said as she bid goodbye and wheeled off in her chair—a brave girl whose first love skiing was still her only love.

Santa Ready for Golfers

Christmas won't be over until Boxing Day for this Santa Claus. Our camera caught him yesterday with some of the 170 gifts which are being presented by the Hudson's Bay Company to players in the Colonist Christmas Tree golf tournament next Thursday at Victoria and Uplands golf clubs.

Thanks to the co-operation of the HBC no player has yet gone without a prize in this popular tournament, being played for the fourth time this year. Santa will be on the first tee both at Victoria and Uplands to wish the players good luck and good cheer.

Speaking Briefly

Frisco Football Fans Make Third TV Trek

A crowd of 60,000 will jam Kezar Stadium in San Francisco Sunday afternoon as the 49ers and Detroit Lions square off in their sudden-death playoff game for the National Football League western conference title.

Interest in the game has reached tremendous proportions. For the third straight Sunday, 15,000 or more San Francisco fans who couldn't buy tickets will drive 150 miles to avoid the television blackout and see their team in action.

Victoria fans will see the game on channels 11 and 12 starting at 1 p.m.

Both the Lions and 49ers held secret workouts yesterday. San Francisco won the first game between the clubs, 35-31, on a touchdown pass in the final 11 seconds, and the Lions took the next one, 31-10.

Winner of the game will play Cleveland Browns for the NFL title the following Sunday.

New Area For Skiing Opens Soon

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP)—A new skiing area will be opened Dec. 28 in the Hurricane Ridge area of the Olympic National Park.

Park superintendent Fred J. Overly said facilities at the area, 18 miles southeast of here, will include two rope tows, ski instruction and first aid protection. A visitors' centre will serve light meals. There will be no overnight facilities.

The area will be open daily from Dec. 28 through Jan. 2 and weekends thereafter.

Chess Tie

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Samuel Reshevsky of the United States and Svetozar Gligoric of Yugoslavia tied as champions of the Dallas international chess tournament, Canada's Abe Yanofsky finished fifth.

Wings Get First Results from Trade As McIntyre's Two Goals Beat Leafs

Jack McIntyre made his debut in a Detroit uniform a spectacular one last night, scoring two successive third-period goals to lead the Red Wings to a 3-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in their National Hockey League game at Detroit.

McIntyre, one of four players obtained in a trade with Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday, was placed on a line with Alex Delvecchio and responded with his first two goals of the season.

The halting, right-winger, who managed only five assists during his stint with the Black Hawks this season, gave the Wings a 2-1 lead at 8:06 of the final period when he deflected a 50-foot shot by Delvecchio past Ed Chadwick. He boosted the margin at 15:56 with what proved to be the winner.

McIntyre's pair of goals offset Ted Sloan's two-goal effort for the Leafs. Sloan gave Toronto the lead with 48 seconds left in the first period, but Forbes Kennedy tied it up at 6:14 of the middle period with his first goal on home ice. Sloan's second goal came with less than three minutes left in the game.

Detroit's win snapped the Leaf victory skid at three games, and dropped Billy Reay's club out of the third-place tie with Boston Bruins, who played to a 3-3 draw with New York Rangers at Boston.

Detroit still owns an almost perfect record against the Leafs, who have only lost two of their last 11 games. The Red Wings have played Toronto six times, won four games, and tied the other two.

At Boston, the Bruin hero was Larry Hillman.

Hillman's first goal of the season and second in three years enabled the Bruins to squeeze out the tie before 10:43 fans. The goal, on a pass from Johnny Bucyk, capped a sudden flurry that saw three goals scored in less than three minutes.

New York tied the score at 2:22 on Larry Poppin's backhand at 11:37. At 13:34, Bill Gadsby scored unassisted on a shot that caromed in off a defenceman to send the Rangers ahead. Hillman salvaged a point at 14:24.

The late rally partially offset the Bruins' lead.

Boyd was high man for the Leafs last night with 17 points. Garry Taylor scored 15. Chuck Bennett and George Denison each scored 10 points for Dickinson & Dunn, who trailed 30-17, at the half.

In the preliminary women's game, Victoria B's gained revenge for last week's defeat at the hands of Polyettes by trouncing them, 51-18. Louise Heil was high scorer with 19 points.

Daily Queen Eds, playing without high-scoring Johnny Clark, moved past the idle Victoria College Vikings into first place in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League last night with a 50-44 victory over Dickinson & Dunn at Mount View High School.

Clark, who along with Charlie Boyd has provided most of the Eds' scoring punch, was involved in an auto accident Tuesday. It was learned last night that his injuries will keep him out of the Dairy Queen lineup for about six weeks.

scoring the performance of Jerry Toppazzini, who returned to action for the Bruins after being sidelined with a groin injury and scored two goals.

Toppazzini opened scoring early in the first period but Camille Henry, the league's leading scorer, got his 17th of the season to tie it up before the period ended.

Toppazzini sent Boston back into the lead for the second time, blasting a 25-foot shot in off Marcel Paille's pads at 2:30 of the final period before Poppin tied it again with his 13th goal of the season.

The single point enabled the Rangers to move within six points of the first-place Montreal Canadiens.

Canucks Lead Midget League

Victoria Cougars made their second player change in recent weeks yesterday morning and coach Pat Egan promised there would be more unless his club started to cut into the distance separating them from a Western Hockey League playoff berth.

Checking in was Bud Syverson, hard-hitting defenceman whose acquisition from Calgary Stampeders was announced earlier in the week. Leaving to make room for Syverson was Warren Back, rookie defenceman owned by the Boston Bruins.

Back leaves today for Kingston and action in the Eastern Ontario Hockey Association.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

I will always remember Reg Patterson most often for his association with baseball. That is to be expected, but only those who knew him real well knew of the depth of his devotion to the diamond sport. It was more than a devotion, it was almost an absolute dedication at one time.

It had to be that. After two or three good seasons, things got progressively worse financially for the city's professional baseball club. Pat struggled along, hoping for a miracle, trying to keep the Tyees playing even when there was no money for his salary and he must have known in his heart that it was hopeless.

This wasn't the effort of a stubborn or foolish man, or of a fellow fighting to preserve a job. It was the effort of a man who more than anything else wanted to be part of baseball. He was happiest when he was where baseball men got together.

Pat wanted badly to stay in the game after the Tyees had to give it up but he admitted that there was little future in the smaller minor leagues and reluctantly turned down several offers. He came close to getting an important position, but when it didn't materialize because the fellow he was to replace didn't make an expected major league connection, Pat reconciled himself to being a "civilian" again.

Whenever we got together, however, the talk was almost always about baseball, mostly about the experiences we shared at training camps, league meetings and on road trips.

We used to recall with relish the many unforgettable and hilarious moments at the training camp in Kamloops. We laughed often about one camp in California at which Pat spent almost all of his time, between wiring and telephoning club officials in Victoria for money, convincing the owner of the resort at which the club was staying that there was money.

And then there was the hurried trip from San Francisco to Victoria when all the money the Tyees had was represented in a few rolls of nickels and dimes Pat had purchased to make change at an exhibition game which didn't draw a dozen paying customers. There were curious, and sometimes suspicious, looks whenever we stopped to gas up and paid with painstakingly-counted five and 10-cent pieces. Bill Prior and I shared driver's duties on that trip and Pat tried to sleep in the back while all of us almost froze coming through the Oregon mountains at night because we couldn't get the car windows up.

Each time we met we'd recall other incidents, both of us sorry they couldn't have been reported at the time they happened.

"Some day," Pat was wont to say, "I'm going to get you to write the whole story."

That day never came. They called a third strike on Pat last week and this is the only way I know to say how much I wish he was still in the game.

Syverson to Replace Rookie; Warriors Lead by 11 Points

Syverson, Egan announced, will play alongside the Victoria coach in Saturday's game against Seattle Americans at Memorial Arena while Nels Bullock and the improved Carl Kaiser will remain together as the other defence combination.

DISAPPOINTED

Egan didn't hide his disappointment over Wednesday's 3-1 loss to New Westminster Royals.

"We didn't play well," he admitted, "but then neither did they. We had our chances and when we weren't miffing them, that Bentley was coming through for the Royals."

He referred, of course, to Bev Bentley, whose fine goaling has been so instrumental in putting the Royals out front in the Western Division.

Egan also had a word of praise for the Royals.

"They're playing the most consistent hockey out here," he said. "They deserve to be in first place."

He was still certain, however, that the Cougars can yet make the playoffs.

"We can catch Seattle, and we're going to take another step in that direction on Saturday night," he declared.

Only WHL action last night was an Eastern Division game at Winnipeg in which the Warriors extended their lead to 11 points with a 3-2 win over Calgary Stampeders.

ROOKIE GETS WINNER

Rookie-centre Art Stratton, a real find, broke a 2-2 tie late in the third period. It was his ninth goal and tied him with Vancouver's Orland Kurtenbach for rookie scoring honors. Both have 28 points.

Pete Kapusta, a veteran playing his 13th professional season, and Gordie Redah, promising 22-year-old sophomore, got the other Winnipeg goals in a game which featured brilliant netminding by Warriors' Ray

Whether or not Victoria will be included in the Pacific Coast Soccer League when it resumes operation next spring won't be known until early in the new year unless league officials should demand a decision earlier.

Jim Lackie, spokesman for the city group which has been awarded a franchise on acceptance of certain terms, said after a meeting last night that league officials will be asked to give Victorias about three more weeks to make a decision.

Lackie explained that "he had been in touch with a prospective sponsor yesterday who had told him that he could make no decision until after the holiday season. The prospective sponsor will meet with Lackie either January 7 or 8 to discuss the matter."

"He's interested," Lackie said, "and if he agrees on sponsorship we will be in the league."

How About a Good Book?

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS.

If I had to make a last-minute selection of a Christmas gift for a keen gardener, I think I would plump for a garden book of some kind. These have an almost universal appeal and I have yet to find an ardent gardener who could resist dipping into a book on plants.

Fortunately there is a very wide range of books available suitable for every degree of proficiency, from the tank amateur to the specialist grower.

For the young couple just getting started on this fascinating hobby, one of the best all-round how-to-do-it books is "The Complete Book of Garden Magic" by Roy E. Biles.

This one is something of a rarity among garden books in that the author never makes the mistake of talking over the head of the novice gardener. It is a big book with lots of pictures and diagrams explaining the basic techniques of gardening and while it is not written specifically for our climate it fills the bill and I can not find a more satisfactory volume to put into the hands of newcomers to gardening. It sells for around $2.75.

A somewhat more advanced book is "Garden Questions" written by the author of "The Complete Book of Garden Magic" and published by the same publisher. It is a collection of questions and answers on a wide range of garden subjects and is a very handy reference book. It sells for around $2.00.

A complete and excellent introduction to the world of plants is "The Garden Book" by the author of "The Complete Book of Garden Magic" and published by the same publisher. It is a comprehensive guide to the garden and is a very handy reference book. It sells for around $2.00.
